RUSSIAN PRESS WARNS JAPAN TO KEEP PEACE

Anniversary of Pact Occasion for Statement; Moscow Is Confident of Victory.

By The Associated Press

In apparently growing conviction that the Red army holds the upper hand on Russia's European front, one of the leading mouthpieces of Russian policy declared sharply today that Japanese "blabbering" about invasion in the Russian east "might damage, first of all and most of all, Japan herself."

Thus, Pravda, newspaper organ of the Communist party, oddly observed the first anniversary of the signing of the Japanese-Russian neutrality pact, the basis of the uneasy peace between the two powers and striking similarity to the Russian-German non-aggression pact which Germany voided by invasion of the Soviet Union last June.

Pravda firmly warned Japan to live up to all ramifications of the agreement.

"It is necessary," the editorial declared, "that the Japanese military and Fascist cliques who are dizzy on military successes should understand that their blabbering about war and invasion in the north might damage first of all and most of all Japan herself."

Siberia is north of Japan.

U. S., Jap Envoys Arrive

The anniversary and the editorial came while the new Japanese ambassador, Naotake Sato, and the new United States ambassador, Admiral William H. Standley, were in Moscow to present their credentials.

How much of Russia's confidence depended on the possibility of a second European front was a question. There have been repeated calls that the axis thus be diverted to facilitate Russia's position against Germany.

The RAF smashed at axis arsenals in Germany and Italy during the night.

Not a bomber was reported lost on the 1,500-mile roundtrip foray against Turin, a munitions-making center of northern Italy, but at least 10 bombers and one fighter were lost in the sweeps to Essen's Krupp works, docks at Le Havre, France, and airdromes in France and the low countries.

The British acknowledged those losses, and the German high command put the cost of the last 24 hours of RAF offensive action over Europe at 24—15 downed by day and nine by night.

DEMAND SHOWDOWN ON LABOR TROUBLES

Waving of Overtime for 48-Hour Week Is Goal.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 13—Advocates of restrictive labor legislation served notice today that only an agreement by unions to waive overtime pay for a 48-hour week in war industries would swerve them in their efforts to force a congressional showdown on this question next week.

Senator Connally (D-Tex) paved the way for such a showdown by inviting those of different views to argue their case if he is successful in bringing before the senate his bill to permit the government to take over strike-bound war plants, freezing working conditions and labor relations in such plants.

Connally predicted a majority of his colleagues would vote to consider the measure when the question comes up next Monday.

"I'm going to tell them if they want a showdown, this is the time to get it," he said. "If we get the bill up, then we can thresh out the whole labor question."

Senator Lee (D-Okla), who has been in the vanguard of those urging suspension of the 40-hour week law, said he would welcome settlement of the issue through a voluntary agreement between labor and management. He said, however, that nothing short of such an accomplishment would satisfy him and others of like views.

Administration leaders have been reported seeking such an agreement and Senator Maloney (D-Conn) predicted that an understanding might be reached this week. Maloney advocated enactment of legislation to freeze open and closed shops in war industries for the duration of the conflict, an action he said he would go a long way toward eliminating present controversies.

ALLIED PLANES SMASH JAPS

Air Offensive Gains with Heavy Attacks from Australia Over Week-End.

By The Associated Press

MELBOURNE, April 13 — The mounting allied air offensive gathered momentum during the week-end in a series of fierce assaults which left a trail of destruction today in Japanese bases stretching from Timor to the Solomon islands along a vast 2,400-mile arc north of this continent.

Principal target of the offensive was Rabaul, New Britain, which was raided yesterday for the fourth successive day. The allied raiders also struck again at the Japanese airdrome at Koepang, oft-bombed capital of Dutch Timor.

Dispatches from Port Moresby, New Guinea, said pilots returning from yesterday's raid upon Rabaul reported they had left a large Japanese ship burning in the harbor after scoring a direct hit on her stern and several near misses.

Heavy Attack Sunday

This assault wrote a sequel to a heavy attack Saturday on Rabaul by a large formation of big United States bombers and Australian fighters, carried out at low altitude in the face of violent anti-aircraft fire.

A communique announcing the new raid on Rabaul said a large Japanese ship in the harbor was seriously damaged by a direct hit from a heavy bomb and by two near misses.

(A New York Times dispatch from a United Nations air base said allied raiders had scored a direct hit and two near misses on a Japanese aircraft carrier near Rabaul.)

Despite violent anti-aircraft fire from ships and shore batteries and opposition from Japanese fighters, all the allied planes returned safely, the communique added. One enemy fighter plane was seen plummeting earthward after trailing smoke during the engagement, but its destruction was not officially confirmed.

28 Planes Destroyed

Initial accounts of the allied raids yesterday did not mention the destruction of any Japanese planes in air combats. From communiques and semi-official dispatches, however, it was calculated that at least 28 enemy planes had been destroyed or seriously damaged during the two preceding days.

Army Minister Francis Forde returned from a tour of training camps and declared "the whole Australian nation must be organized to meet an immediate attack from a ruthless enemy."

He has been in the navy for the last four years and for the last three years has been with the Asiatic fleet.

Man Walks Into Erie Troop Train

Albert Bockman, 52, of 227½ North Main street suffered a fractured left arm, a fractured nose and forehead injuries in an accident at the North Main street railroad crossing about 1:30 yesterday afternoon. Police said he walked into the engine of an Erie troop train.

The train, which stopped immediately after the accident, contained about 16 cars. Soldiers from the train formed a barricade around the scene of the mishap.

Bockman had come from visiting friends in the downtown area and was going home. He was walking north and attempted to cross the track on the west side of Main street when the train, which was west-bound, struck him, according to officers.

He was later taken to City hospital in a Boyd-Uncapher ambulance, where his condition was reported "fairly good" this morning.

Four Injured In 3 Car Collision

Four persons were sent to City hospital as the result of an automobile accident which occurred about 12:30 yesterday noon at South Prospect street and Edgewood drive. Three were treated and released, and one is still in City hospital.

Mrs. Eva D. Olpinger, 44, of Springfield, most seriously injured in the accident, which involved three cars, is in the hospital, suffering from a fractured nose, a fractured lower right forearm and multiple abrasions. Her condition this morning was reported "fairly good."

Others injured and later released were James G. Olpinger, 45, of Akron, abrasions and lacerations on the left side of the face; Ruth Olpinger, 19, of Springfield, abrasions and lacerations on the left side of the face; and Andrew C. Barker, 37, of Springfield, fractured nose and face lacerations.

Police said a 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Olpinger, another passenger in the Olpinger auto, suffered bruises on the forehead, but was not taken to City hospital.

The accident occurred, officers stated, when a 1939 sedan, driven by Roscoe D. Mezger, 58, of 807 South Prospect street, stopped in South Prospect street preparatory to making a left turn into the driveway of the Mezger home. Mr. Mezger said he was signaling for the turn when a 1941 sedan, operated by James G. Olpinger, who said he was going about 35 miles an hour, northbound on Prospect street, crashed int othe rear of the Mezger car. Mr. Olpinger reported he did not see the other sedan.

A 1937 sedan, driven by Charles F. Kerrey, 42, of 216 East Mark street, which at the time pulled up even with the Mezger auto, was hit in the left side by the Mezger car, after the latter had been hit by the sedan operated by Olpinger.

Although the rear end of the Mezger auto was caved in, and the left side of the car driven by Kerrey was badly damaged, neither Mr. Mezger nor Mr. Kerrey was hurt, according to a police report.

After hitting the Mezger sedan, the car driven by Olpinger cut east over the cur band sidewalk and snapped a guy wire brace pole off, about half way up. The auto landed in a high terrace. Police said the front end of the car, which was taken to McDaniel Motor Co., was badly damaged.

Officials Center Attention On War Plant Housing Problems

Construction, Remodeling and Trailer Camp Facilities Considered; Public Housing Meeting Tonight.

Provision for housing and regulation of trailer camps were the principal phases of the Scioto Ordnance Plant occupying the attention of city and county officials today. Developments in the housing problem are to be studied at a public meeting tonight.

Other developments were the start of closing deals for farms on the ordnance plant site and the announcement that some of the land may be leased later by the government for farming operations.

Last Service Held in Likens Chapel; Army To Use It

A sermon by the pastor, Rev. Donald F. Lyon, music and testimonials by a number of the members marked the closing service held in the Likens chapel church last night. Today workmen are removing the pews and other furnishings to make way for the installation of desks and other equipment of a Scioto Ordnance plant office.

The church was filled and many persons were unable to get inside for the closing service.

Rev. Lyon used for his text the first verse of the Fifty-seventh Psalm. In paying tribute to the founders of the church and those who followed, he said that

MILITARY BURIAL GIVEN LT. DAVIS

Many from Marion Attend Services at Wellston.

Hundreds of relatives and friends attended the funeral yesterday in Wellston of Lt. Ralph D. Davis of the United States army air corps, who was killed when his plane crashed into a North Carolina swamp April 3.

Marion relatives attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McAndrew and children Jack and Joan of 302 East George street, and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. May of 137 Chicago avenue and their children, Mrs. Emmett Osterholt of Detroit, Mrs. Richard Cleveland and L. D. May Jr. The flier's grandmother, Mrs. Mary May of Youngstown, and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bailey and daughter Marilyn of Youngstown were present.

Roger Morgan and Bob Fair of Marion, who went through Harding High school with Lieutenant Davis, and Russell Law of Toledo, a friend now in the United States navy, were among the pallbearers.

Floral tributes filled the rooms and were still arriving at the home when the funeral service was over. A military committal service was accorded at the Wellston cemetery. A firing squad fired a salute and a bugler sounded taps. The American flag on the casket was presented to the flier's widow.

Lt. Edward Calvert, who accompanied the remains to Wellston, and Mrs. Calvert were present for the service. A group of Lieutenant Davis' former instructors at Marietta college, and a large delegation of students attended.

Attorney and Mrs. Davis, the flier's parents, moved to Wellston from Marion two and a half years ago. They were in Marion with relatives during the time of the search for their son's body, which ended last Thursday morning. They went to Wellston Friday afternoon.

Housing and Trailer Problems Studied

Housing and trailer camp facilities were among the problems uppermost in the minds of Marion officials and private citizens today as Scioto Ordnance Plant construction activity went into its fourth week.

The housing problem is expected to be clarified considerably in a dinner meeting tonight at 6:15 in Hotel Harding when A. L. Guckert, representative of the FHA, and an associate versed in priorities meet with interested citizens.

Meanwhile, city and county officials studied in vain for a solution to the approaching trailer camp problem. Typical of the situation was a report from one county official that a trailer camp on the edge of the city designed to accommodate 10 units now has 30 trailers, and is expanding its facilities to take care of the extra ones. However, the rush hasn't yet begun.

Officials said it appears that no substantial number of citizens will build camps, and consequently they centered their hopes on the possibility that one or two large trailer camp projects might be set up. Estimates of the probable need have ranged as high as 1,200 trailers.

Meanwhile, an increasing number of Marion residents are making rooms and in some cases apartments available for rent in their homes. These are meeting the present need, but the influx of workers expected in the next few weeks probably will tax the number of sleeping rooms both in Marion and communities nearby.

Federal action is expected this week or next on applications to obtain defense housing rating for Marion that will assure priorities on materials needed for remodeling and new construction for defense purposes. Building contractors say scores of projects to convert houses into multiple-living units and to remodel residences into more desirable living quarters are "hanging fire" and will move forward immediately if priorities are assured. They also said plans are pending for construction of approximately 100 new homes.

CORREGIDOR'S GUNS BLAST JAP BOATS IN BAY

Fort Keeps Up Fight in Spite of Almost Continuous Air Attacks.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 13—The war department reported today that Corregidor's gunners sank a number of small Japanese boats and kept enemy air raiders so high over the Philippine island fortress that bombings in a series of new raids caused only minor damage.

A communique said the Japanese boats were in the harbor of the fishing village of Mariveles at the tip of the abandoned Bataan peninsula. Several were set afire in addition to those sunk.

Meanwhile, communication between Corregidor and Cebu was cut off for the past 48 hours so Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright was unable to report on the efforts to beat off an invasion of the central Philippine island, more than 300 miles south of Corregidor.

Two U. S. Ships Lost

The communique reported belatedly the sinking by enemy action of two army freight ships, the Liberty and the Meigs, both of which went down in the southwest Pacific.

The Liberty was torpedoed twice by an enemy submarne Jan. 11 when 12 miles from the Netherlands Indies island of Bali. No lives were lost. The vessel was beached and 53 crew men and one passenger were rescued by Dutch planes.

The Meigs was sunk Feb. 19 in a bombing raid on the harbor of Darwin, Australia. The master, Captain F. S. Link, died later of wounds. One crew member was killed and eight were wounded.

Ten raids were made on Corregidor on the past 24 hours, the war department said, raising the total to 22 in the last two days.

The communique said there were some casualties but military installations sustained only minor damage.

Japs Keep High

The war department reported 12 aerial raids last night but said last night that defending marksmen compelled the Japanese pilots to keep so far above the target that damage was slight and "only a few casualties were sustained by our troops."

Artillery assaults were reported from both Bataan, which at the closest point is only slightly more than two miles from Corregidor, and Cavite, on the opposite side of Manila bay.

Japanese radio reports said heavy field pieces had been moved into newly won emplacements on the southern tip of Bataan, and these presumably were shelling the American fortress day and night. Japanese tactics call for almost continuous fire to prevent the enemy from gaining sleep.

Life on Corregidor, in the words of a newly returned army officer, was "like living on a bull's eye." Lieut. Col. Warren J. Clear, who reached Washington by way of Australia, predicted that the Japanese, having won Bataan, would throw everything they have agains the Corregidor target.

The all-clear signal, one long blast, repeated after a one-minute interval, will not be sounded until every district has been inspected by the officers to see that the men and women volunteers are on duty.

BONDS SET FOR 10 IN FOREST GLEN CASE

Group Seeking Release Pending Circuit Court Appeals.

Permission to release on bond 10 of the men who were sentenced in the Forest Glen, Inc., cemetery lot fraud and conspiracy case was granted Saturday by Judge Xen Hicks of the U. S. Sixth district circuit court of appeals in Cincinnati.

The 10, nine of whom are represented by Grant E. Mouser Jr. of Marion, are held at city prison in Columbus pending negotiations for the bonds which were set by the Cincinnati court. Mr. Mouser said conferences with the families of the men were being conducted in his offices here today. He said also that the family of Earl Pardee of Findlay, one of the sentenced men, has placed that defendant's case in his hands.

The men and the bonds which have been set for them are as follows: E. G. Blue of Marion, $7,500; Earl Holliday of Detroit, $10,000; W. Hal Marshall of Morenci, Mich., $7,500; George E. Reinwald of Marion, $10,000; Paul Secord of Delaware, $5,000; A. L. Mallott of Marion, $7,500; R. C. Deck of Toledo, $7,500; H. S. Berry of Toledo, $5,000; S. C. Neidigh of Marion, $5,000 and Willard S. Holcombe of Columbus, represented by Mathew Bigger of Columbus, $7,500.

All ten of the men filed notices of appeal in the Cincinnati court Saturday. Blue, W. H. Marshall, Secord, Berry and Neidigh were indicted on the first of the 10 counts only, the others on all 10 counts, Mr. Mouser said.

It was expected the other sentenced men imprisoned in Columbus would, through their attorneys, file notices of appeal with the Cincinnati court some time tomorrow. J. W. Jacoby of Marion who was given a four-year suspended prison sentence and a fine of $5,000, paid the fine Saturday afternoon and was released. He returned to Marion Saturday.

Mr. Mouser said negotiations for securing the bonds are being conducted with a New York firm.

War Bond and Stamp Sales for Week $36,037

Sale of war bonds and stamps in Marion county last week amounted to $36,037.70, according to a weekly report of the Marion county bond and stamp committee.

Sales for the preceding week totaled $62,073.75, second highest weekly total since the sales campaign started.

ENEMY FLEET CHALLENGE TO ALLIED FORCES

Churchill Reveals Tokyo Sends at Least 3 Battleships and 5 Plane Carriers to Area.

By The Associated Press

With at least a fourth of her total strength in battleships, perhaps half of her aircraft carriers and formidable contingents of supporting and covering craft, the Japanese imperial fleet has seized effective control of the Bay of Bengal in the war's strongest challenge to the United States and British fleets.

Prime Minister Churchill gravely disclosed in the house of commons today that at least three Japanese battleships, including one of 32,720 tons mounting 16-inch guns, along with five aircraft carriers, a number of light and heavy cruisers and several destroyer flotillas are operating there at the front door to India.

Broadly suggesting a strategy to meet the challenge, with a possible implication of the need for United States naval participation Churchill said:

"We have the Pacific ocean and the Indian ocean with the Japanese occupying an intermediate position between the two. It is possible to use large forces on one side and small forces on the other, or vice versa."

Japanese Control Bay

His statement, covering the Easter day bombing of Colombo and Trincomalee, strong points on Ceylon, and the subsequent sinking of the British aircraft carrier Hermes and the cruisers Dorsetshire and Cornwall, constituted an indirect admission that the Japanese had won dominance in the Bay of Bengal.

Not until Prime Minister Churchill made this disclosure today was the threat to communications with India—if not the direct threat to India—known to be backed so powerfully. Earlier estimates of the enemy's power in the Bay of Bengal counted at most a cruiser force and a pair of aircraft carriers with supporting craft.

Whether the British fleet would take up the challenge to the full was not at once apparent, although last week when the Japanese strength there was not so fully pictured, it was reported that his majesty's warships were seeking the Japanese for battle.

The British naval situation is one of thinly spread forces in the Atlantic, Mediterranean and other waters where they have thousands of miles of lifeline communications to guard.

Huge Ship In Service

The Churchill statement in London said that the Japanese battleships in the Bay of Bengal included one of the modernized Nagato type mounting 16-inch guns. The aircraft carriers have been reported to include at least one of the newer 28,000-ton vessels capable of carrying 80 planes.

The disclosure of the Japanese strength came in a statement on the British loss last week of two heavy cruisers, the Dorsetshire and Cornwall, and the small aircraft carrier Hermes—first blood of the naval conflict in the Bay of Bengal.

Churchill said he could say nothing about the disposition of the British fleet in that zone without benefiting the enemy. He declared, however, that the British losses had not weakened the admiralty's confidence in the command there by Admiral Sir James Somerville.

The prime minister pointed out that the Japanese suffered heavy losses in carrier-borne aircraft in their attacks on the Ceylon harbors of Colombo and Trincomalee and that the British suffered similar losses—"to a lesser extent, but seriously"—as well as damage to shore establishments and the few ships that remained in the harbors.

With India still not united for battle with Burma and with further Japanese advances reported on the Burma approach, indications were stronger than ever that the Indian theatre of the British empire would rank soon with Russia as one of the two most important fronts of the world conflict.

What do I do?

—to keep my car engine "fit"?

Avoiding excessive speed will help, of course. But most important—change motor oil every 1,000 miles! Why every 1,000 miles? Because no matter how fine the oil—no matter how good the oil filter—it becomes dirty, diluted in doing its important job. In that condition it can't give your engine the full protection it so vitally needs today—to make your engine last.

Last Chardon Festival Held Until After War

By The Associated Press

CHARDON, O., April 13—The Geauga county maple fest which ended yesterday may be the last of these annual events for the duration of the war.

"But we don't know yet for sure," said Arthur B. Carlson, president, "but we'll probably have to give up the festival for the duration." A good many tires will be worn out by next spring, and Chardon has no public transportation connecting it with surrounding towns.

"Anyway," added Carlson, "we know it has the same appeal."

He was referring to the fact that Lieut. M. A. Mock, of the state highway patrol, conservatively estimated yesterday's festival crowd at 60,000 persons, approximately equalling the final day's attendance last year. Paul Denton, festival secretary, said he believed 70,000 attended yesterday.

Secret Orders

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

YESTERDAY: Stephanie Merrill met Capt. Kurt Knudsen because she tried to miss a dog in the road, and smashed her car. At first she disliked him, and then she almost fell in love with him. But her cousin, Vicky, has cut in on that and appears to have plans for further cutting. So Stephanie seems to be relegated to the attention of Henri de la Pagerie, whom she likes well enough, but does not quite trust.

• • •

CHAPTER FOUR

Golf Game As Bait

STEPHANIE was just turning out her light when she heard Vicky's silvery laugh followed by the slamming of a car door. A moment later she came up the stairs.

"Steve dear," she called softly, tapping at the door. "Are you awake?"

For a moment, Stephanie was tempted not to answer. Listening to all the details of Kurt's capitulation wasn't going to be any pleasure. Then, with a grimace, she answered:

"Come in. Have a good time?"

"Oh, simply divine," Vicky perched on the edge of the bed. "Didn't you?" and then without waiting to hear, "Isn't he simply adorable!"

Stephanie's smile twisted. "Adorable" was hardly the word to describe Kurt.

"He's so terribly good-looking and such a divine dancer and you know," Vicky pursed her lips thoughtfully, "I don't think I've ever met a man who is really intelligent as he is."

Something inside Stephanie began to ache dully.

"And do you know, angel, I do think he's interested in me." Vicky's eyes misted dreamily. "I think I'll be married in palest pink satin."

"Well, aren't you rather counting your bridesmaids before they're hatched?" Stephanie laughed but her own persistent hopes silently folded their tents and slunk away.

Vicky wrinkled her nose, flounced off the bed. "You'll see!" Then, brushing a kiss against her cousin's cheek, she said, "Get some sleep, angel. We're playing golf with Henri at six in the morning."

"Six! We are?" Stephanie gasped, "Since when have you taken to rising before dawn?"

"Since — tomorrow." Vicky smiled knowingly.

And not until the next morning as they walked through dew-wet grass approaching the Mayfair's tricky third hole did Stephanie begin to understand Vicky's little scheme. At best, Vicky's game was erratic but this morning it was simply wild. She'd already lost two balls and since she'd insisted they play without caddies, she spent most of the time searching "out in the rough." Finally, Stephanie saw why. Beyond a water hazard and a sand trap and just putting onto the fifth green, was Kurt Knudsen.

Surprise?

"Why—there's Kurt Knudsen," Vicky echoed her thought aloud with so much surprise in her voice that any innocent bystander would have been completely fooled. "And he's playing alone, too. Maybe he'd like to join us?" Vicky called, waved and Kurt, missing his putt, looked up scowling. But, instantly, a smile appeared. He picked up his ball, walked toward them.

The best-laid plans of a wily woman, Stephanie thought savagely as she sliced her own ball disastrously, went off like clockwork. And, for all his intelligence Kurt Knudsen was certainly falling for some pretty old tricks.

Stephanie drove again. This time her ball soared beautifully straight toward the green, rolled obligingly into good putting range.

Stephanie flushed. "Thanks. It was—just luck."

"Indeed it wasn't," Vicky defended her with suspicious ardor. "Stevie's a marvelous golfer. She does all the sports so well. I envy you, angel. Truly I do. You have so much strength."

Stephanie could have strangled her. Nice work, cousin! She was making Stephanie feel exactly like an Amazon. It took all she had to shrug carelessly. "Don't be silly," and walk off after her ball.

But, she determined, she was not going to let Kurt see her temper again. Not even if she mistook her for a feminine Samson. Besides, maybe if she gave Vicky enough rope, she'd hang up her own silly strategy for Kurt to see.

But Kurt was blind to everything except Vicky's beautiful face apparently. He fell for all the little tricks like showing her how to stand, how to hold her club, helping her decide which club to use. And finally, abandoning his own game, he actually suggested Henri play on ahead with Stephanie.

"No need for you two to wait," he suggested, smiling. "I'll help Vicky."

And Vicky needed plenty of help. Out in a sand trap, she lost her ball, was frightened by "something" in the brush, ran screaming up a bank and—turned her ankle. So badly that Kurt must carry her to the club house.

Stephanie ground her teeth, and tried hard to make her concern pass for genuine. Tried hard not to see the way Vicky's arm curved around Kurt's neck, the way tender concern had written itself into his face.

He carried her straight to his own car. There, he put her carefully into the seat, pulled off her shoe, examined the injured foot.

"Nothing broken, anyway," and smiled up at her as he knelt to massage the ankle, to bind it quickly, skillfully.

"There," he said finally, "that will do until you get a doctor."

"Oh, it feels much better already, Kurt. You've just helped it wonderfully. Thank you so much."

"And you are a very brave little girl," Henri offered, still carrying Kurt's golf bag and Vicky's as well as his own.

Call to Duty

Et tu, Henri? Stephanie thought and despised herself for being mean about it all. But when even worldly sophisticates like Henri made pack-horses of themselves to please Vicky, things were certainly pretty hopeless.

"Oh, I'm not a bit brave, Henri." Vicky's blue eyes widened. "I'm just an awful baby. I'm afraid."

Stephanie glanced at Kurt. Surely Vicky was over-playing her hand this time. Surely any reasonably intelligent male could see through that. But Kurt's blue eyes didn't betray even the ghost of a smile.

She was grateful then, that a boy from the club ran toward them shouting Kurt's name.

It was an order from Kurt's superior officer. He was to report, in uniform, at once.

"I'm sorry," Kurt apologized. "I'll have to leave immediately." He turned to Henri. "You'll see that the girls get home safely, won't you, sir?"

Henri bowed. "But of course."

And then to Stephanie, Kurt said, acting as if she were Vicky's mother instead of her cousin, "And you'll see that Vicky's foot is properly attended to?"

For an instant, Stephanie met his eyes, tried in vain to see something there to revive her own secret hopes. "Certainly," she said finally. And then watched Kurt pick Vicky up again and with incredible gentleness, transfer her to the seat of Henri's car.

As he swung into his car, drove off, Stephanie remembered the word she'd been hunting for almost from the moment she'd first looked up at him. Viking. He looked, she decided, like a hero straight out of Beowolf or off an ancient Norse battlefield.

And so what! she demanded of herself furiously. There was certainly nothing particularly virile about the way he'd let Vicky wrap him around her little finger. And doing a lot of wishful thinking about him wasn't going to improve the situation any. She might better concentrate on charming Henri just—she added wryly—to convince her own wounded ego that she was still not exactly a wallflower.

RUMMAGING through my desk the other day, I came across some snapshots of friends of mine made back in 1933.

If you don't think time flies . . . If you don't think this world ever changes . . . you ought to look at the women's hats and dresses in those pictures taken 9 years ago! Wow!

It gave me quite a start . . . and then it set me to thinking . . . and rememberin'! Lots of things sure happened in 1933. A new administration in Washington . . . the turning point of the depression . . . and the coming of Repeal.

• • •

I remember the re-legalization of beer. It came before Repeal, when Congress amended the old Volstead Act to allow legal sale of "3.2" beer.

What talk and arguments they had in those days! One argument I remember well . . . was that beer would do a lot to help bring back prosperity. I wondered at the time whether that argument could be proved.

I thought about that agai other day. I decided to che and find out.

Well, I found out pler found out that legal beer ha more than 3 billion dollars in since 1933. It has made mor a million new jobs.

According to one of the r I've seen, beer has put mor 15 billion dollars into genera ness circulation. Goodnes that's a lot of money.

Beer is sold today in every in the Union. Every state be from beer's jobs and taxes. guess there's no denying tha did do its share in bringing better times.

Payroll Defense Bond Deduction Plan Indorsed.

George W. Sorreles of Green Camp and Fred P. Haas of 202 Forest Lawn boulevard were delegates of Marion Typographical Union No. 675 to the seventieth semi-annual session of the Ohio Typographical Conference Saturday and Sunday at Martins Ferry.

Mr. Sorreles, president of the local union, is also president of the state organization. Mr. Haas served as chairman of the state auditing committee. Both are employed in The Star composing room.

Mrs. Virginia W. Sorreles, delegate of Woman's Auxiliary No. 179 to Marion Typographical Union, attended sessions of the Ohio Conference of Woman's Typographical Auxiliaries held in connection with the state union meeting. Mrs. Sorreles is secretary-treasurer of the state auxiliary.

Among resolutions adopted by the conference was one indorsing payroll deductions for purchase of U. S. defense bonds. Employes of The Star have participated in such a plan since the first of the year.

It was also reported that detailed county auditor's annual report is being printed in many counties this year instead of the short form as in previous years. This follows action of local unions in requesting use of the long form in various counties.

Seventy-four delegates and alternates representing 34 unions attended the two-day conference. About 200 visitors were also present. Saturday night delegates were guests at a floor show and dance.

The Martins Ferry Times published a tabloid section Saturday in connection with the conference meeting.

NAME IS ADOPTED FOR DEFENSE CORPS

Civilian Force Here To Be Called Marion Rifles.

Effective immediately, Marion's civilian military corps will be known as Marion Rifles, the name formerly used to designate the student corps, George D. Hildebrandt, commander, announced today.

Volunteer enrollment in the three companies, student, cadet and senior, has reached the place that there are enough men and boys to form a battalion.

Starting today there will be no drills of the student company in The Star auditorium. Because of after-school work, the boys asked that they be permitted to drill at the Armory Monday nights at 7.

Tonight emblems will be presented to the boys who did not receive them last week. The emblems are to be worn on the service caps which they have been given.

To date 115 subscriptions for rifles have been given, Mr. Hildebrandt said. Because of the growing numbers in the companies, a goal of 150 has been set.

Rehearsals are under way for the military minstrel show which the Rifles will give May 14-15 in Central Junior High school. The show will include an all-military drill.

Philippine Lesson

IT IS interesting now to remember what used to be said about the Philippines. They could not be held without vastly greater preparations than were being made. The promise of independence held out to them meant nothing whatever when Japan began to put a policy of empire expansion into effect, because Filipinos merely would trade the direction of the United States for the mastery of Japan.

The Philippines had to be held—and other stronger outposts had to be developed—if this country intended to resist Japan's treatment of China. It was no situation for halfway measures; a major disaster was in the making for the United States if it left anything to chance. Writing in Saturday Evening Post in April, 1939, Edgar Snow predicted virtually what now has happened, unless the government bolstered its antagonistic attitude toward Japan with stronger naval bases. It made a beginning, but there still were workmen on Guam when it was captured, and in the Philippines too little and too late was the story of preparations for aerial warfare.

Filipinos never loved the United States so much as they did when they realized what was in store for them at the hands of the Japanese, unless the United States held them at bay. The Philippine lesson, as much or more than the bitter lessons the British have learned, is that too little and too late spells tragedy against alert, aggressive enemies who are gambling everything on quick victory.

Nose-Punching Might Help

NOTHING sensational came of it, but an important political figure and a well known publisher tried to beat each other's ears off in Washington recently because they disagreed on the subject of responsibility for the rubber shortage. It's one case where a little nose-punching might help.

The political figure was Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, the official charged with responsibility before the Pearl Harbor disaster for building a rubber stockpile. The publisher was Eugene Meyer; he had published an editorial blaming Mr. Jones for the rubber shortage.

Now of course it is silly to blame Mr. Jones for the rubber shortage. But what really peeved Mr. Meyer was the fact that Mr. Jones seems inclined to blame the rubber industry, which is even sillier. It is a trend, nevertheless, and that's why some nose-punching might help.

Washington had been practicing business-baiting for a good many years before this war fired up—and the habit is established. In the depression, business could be blamed for anything and everything; the depression was an economic sinking spell, and that's in the field of private enterprise.

But war, of course, isn't in the field of private enterprise. It lies wholly within the field of government. It was put there specifically in the preamble of the Constitution—"to provide for the common defense" and one of the purposes of creating a central government.

To the extent that spokesmen for the government keep trying to shove off blame for lacks and shortages that impede the war effort on private enterprise, they had better be prepared to put up their fists and fight it out. There is no disposition to accept responsibility. There is, on the other hand, an urgent disposition to pitch in to make up for past mistakes, and if government spokesmen can forget business-baiting long enough to concentrate on that, they'll be astonished at the results. Where they already have done so, in fact, there is more war material being rolled off loading platforms than they could have expected to see there if they had been running all the private enterprise of the United States, themselves, which is what they seem to be panting to do sometimes.

Fair Redistricting Impossible

A RULING by the Ohio supreme court holding a senatorial redistricting proposal unconstitutional is accompanied by remarks from outside the court that the plan would have been unfair. There can be no argument about that. There never was a fair redistricting plan. That's the reason Ohio has been piddling along for years with congressmen-at-large: Democrats and Republicans can't agree on how to give them districts without giving one party or the other an advantage.

From a Democratic viewpoint, redistricting always should increase Democratic representation; from the Republican viewpoint, Republican strength should be increased. There is no happy medium, just as there is no happy medium when two hungry dogs start eyeing the same piece of beefsteak.

Of course from the ordinary citizen's point of view, redistricting is purely a problem of giving voters equal representation in legislative assemblies. But it's almost amusingly naive to speak of it in the midst of a redistricting squabble for, by and of politicians.

ALL-IMPORTANT.

In a free country human levels are not established by anybody's say so. If we can come through the war holding fast to individuality we shall deserve a plaque.—Jack Warwick in The Toledo Blade.

News Behind the News

Russians Face Huge Task Preparing To Meet Hitler's Spring Drive.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 13—Daily [illegible] successes of the Russians during the winter may have blinded us to the reality of their critical spring condition.

The unwelcome truth is they have not captured much that the Germans tried desperately to hold.

An assessment of the winter fighting now nearing an end, shows they saved Moscow and won Kalinin, Rostov and the Valdai hills, but they were not able fully to relieve Leningrad.

While they have frequently been reported marching into the outskirts of Kharkov, they have not won the city. They thought they had 150,000 Nazis trapped at Mozhaisk and 100,000 more at Staraya, Russia, but they claimed no such captures in the end.

It would be well for us to face the fact that, at the end of an advantageous period for Russian fighting, most of the key positions are still in Nazi hands. The Reds have regained only about 15 per cent of the territory they had lost.

Nazi Wear and Tear

To start off the spring, about 40 per cent of Russian industry is in German hands, our shipments to their fighting front have been substantial, but cannot replace this loss.

Strangely, their plane production, is up beyond a year ago, which is a very encouraging factor, though all other production is down.

The Nazis, however, are not in such a good productive position as you would surmise from their vast industrial seizures in France, the lowlands and southeastern Europe. Hitler passed his peak in both man-power and materials a year ago.

German plane production has not increased in the past 12 months. (Incidentally our production is yet nowhere near its peak, in fact, is just beginning to rise.)

Greatest Russian victory is one which could not be estimated in communiques—the wear and tear on Nazi equipment from a year of fighting.

With their localized winter onslaughts, the Reds have captured substantial quantities of tanks and trucks. At Rostov where the Nazis got out fast, much food and equipment was obtained.

But the equipment they have been able to capture would make a small pile beside the inestimable amount the Nazis have lost through depreciation. You cannot run tanks, guns, and trucks around for a year on Russian roads under hard usage without expecting about 100 per cent replacement.

Russian Prospects

Adding up these facts will lead you to an expectation that the Red may be kicked around a lot this spring and summer. They should be able to survive. They may not fold.

The fight would be long, slow and hard, but Hitler stands an excellent chance to hammer back across Rostov into the Caucasus oil fields and cut off the Russian oil supply, which would be a calamity.

If Russia folds this year, or her army is chased back into the Urals, the European war is by no means over. England should be able to survive invasion with her existing armament, even without the aid of continued Russian opposition.

On Other Fronts

Worse symptoms for us can be detected in the concentration of Hitler's energies against Malta and in Libya. Malta has passed her 2000th bombing. If it falls, most of the Mediterranean will be closed to the British, Cyprus is open to parachute attack, and if it goes, Turkey will be surrounded.

General Rommel in Libya has been heavily reinforced and has about six weeks left in which to reach for the great British naval base at Alexandria, key to the British position in the near east. Heat thereafter should help to protect the defending lines.

This movement, jointly operating with a Nazi drive in southern Russia (expected at any time now) is designed to pinch out the entire near east and approach Iran and Iraq.

Obviously then the prospects for our side in the Afro-European sphere of war are not yet as we would like to have them.

Boost for Russians

General Marshall's presence in London, along with Harry Hopkins, is obviously intended to bolster Russian morale with action. The British have a vague pooling system for distribution of their arms and munitions. Our officials wanted to get the pooling on a basis which could be understood.

The trip was clearly a recognition of the main point now, which too few people in this country fully appreciate, namely: the future course of this war will be determined this spring and summer on the Russian front.

Women Run No-Tax Town

Mayor Mrs. J. M. Gordon takes up a municipal problem with Mrs. Laura Cook, chief of police, in Spencer, Tenn., a community where women occupy all offices in the administration.

* * *

By ESCAR THOMPSON
Wide World Features

SPENCER, Tenn., April 13—An invitation to attend an old fiddlers' contest or to eat a box supper means to residents of this Cumberland Plateau town what an official demand to "pay your taxes" might elsewhere.

This innovation in raising municipal revenue got its start in October, 1940, when eight civic-minded women got themselves elected to all the offices of the town government, abolished taxes and started sponsoring "benefits" for municipal purposes.

They're Making Money!

Their plan has worked; there is a surplus in the treasury of more than $1,000, or about $2 for each of the community's 508 inhabitants (1940 census), and now "Madam Mayor" and her associates are planning a community building.

"Mountain men always help one another in building houses and things of that sort," said Mrs. J. M. Gordon, the mayor and a middle-aged housewife whose husband is a farmer.

"That's the way we intend to build our community house. The stone has been quarried and the men will put up the building whenever they can spare the time from their work. But we'll probably have to wait until after the war is over to get the heating and plumbing fixtures."

Took Over In 1940

An apathetic attitude on the part of the menfolk after former Mayor J. F. Kell died early in 1940 prompted the women to assume control of the town (county seat of Van Buren county) in the fall elections.

"No one seemed to know what was going to become of the city government after Mayor Kell died," Mrs. Gordon explained, "so some of us womenfolk consulted a lawyer and found out what to do."

As a result she was elected, along with Mrs. Laura Cook, chief of police; Mrs. Waldo Powers, recorder; and the following councilwomen: Mesdames T. F. Page, E. C. Lewis, Edgar Roscoe, W. H. Shackley and D. L. Bouldin.

The Skeptics Found Out

At first the men didn't pay much attention to this petticoat administration, apparently thinking the women would soon tire of their administrative duties.

But after they abolished the taxes and began accumulating a surplus with their "benefits," nods of approval came from the men.

J. L. Graham, the town banker, summed up what seemed to be the current consensus of the male population when he said of Mayor Gordon's administration:

"The ladies are doing fine. They're not going to have any opposition for a second term when they come up for reelection next October, either."

A Minor Point

There was some question as to whether the mayor actually resided within the town's corporate limits. She and her husband live on a hill overlooking Spencer.

But the townfolk, it seems, just wink at this technicality. Said Graham:

"Her home might not be in the last survey of the city limits, but we sure count it a part of Spencer."

Commandos in Training

Rigorous Schooling Methods Proposed for Entire British Army.

(From the British Press Service)

LONDON, April 13 — The entire British army, under a drastic new battle-training scheme, is fast being stepped up in efficiency and fighting pitch to the level of the famed Commandos.

Under this revolutionary plan, every man in the British infantry will soon be as physically tough and as highly trained in individual initiative as the Commandos who stormed their way into St. Nazaire last week.

All British soldiers are now being subjected to rigorous courses on practical tactics in "Battle Schools" set up in every division throughout the army.

For some months, a parent school for this new offensive army has been developing instructors for the divisional schools.

The pupils at this advanced training center are all officers; but they live, work and learn as privates.

Drill routine has been changed from the academic business of parade marches, presenting arms, and formal salutes. It has become a practical drill in the actual movements required of the men as "combat teams" in real battle.

From these preliminary courses in practical cooperation between one squad and another, the men move now out into actual battlefield maneuvers. This training battlefront is no quiet country valley; it is a sector filled with the noise and clouded with the smoke of real bombs, real shells, and real bullets.

Hazards in Training

Even casualties occur in this under-fire training. Of course, heavy barrages are carefully studied beforhand and directed slightly off the target. The men also learn quickly to keep their heads down and to seek protection from every available shelter in their advance across the bomb-trembling ground. However, wounds are still not uncommon in this training period.

Light tanks from the school plunge through a hail of machine-gun fire and over huge holes in the earth blasted out by exploding land mines.

Such experience teaches the men to take cover effectively and to withstand the nerve-testing sound of battle.

The "Battle Schools" are also designed to toughen the men physically. They are moving constantly — for 16 hours a day, not including lectures in the evening. And they move everywhere at double-time.

These shock troops even run to meals as a result of training and not solely of hunger. That is, if they are having a meal that day.

Prepared for Hardships

For the men are even trained to fight all day and all night without food, moving in forced marches across the countryside. Carrying full equipment, they may cover as much as 40 miles in a single day and still be more than fit to fight at the end of it.

Commando training was first instituted in the British forces in 1940, and by February, 1941, there were already groups of toughened volunteers who were the nucleus of the later-formed Commando infantry troops.

These volunteers accepted months of rigorous training which taught them all the rudiments of hand-to-hand combat with spiked knuckles and daggers, how to make parachute landings to establish combat bases within and behind the enemy's lines, and a thorough knowledge of how best to reconnoitre without giving the enemy any hint that a raid was in progress.

Early attempts to disrupt enemy communications along the French coast were successful, and some of the Commando units split up to train other troops. In this way Commandos have made damaging attacks on Vaagso, in Norway, along the Libyan frontier, and as far away from the British Isle as the Malayan jungles, where Commando-trained British and Colonial troops played an important part in the delaying actions against superior Japanese forces.

Schooled in Jiu Jitsu

Each of the original Commandos was required to master jiu jitsu, in order to subdue enemy sentries without spreading the alarm. They were equipped with unique bolo knives which had spiked knuckles and short, razor-edged blades. These likewise aided in silent combat. Automatic rifles were in large part replaced by light, rapid-fire, sub-machine guns, and these troops carried hand grenades. Their training was such that they could also immediately make use of any enemy guns which might fall into their hands—whether it be one of the small .25 calibre Jap rifles or a 16-inch coastal gun from the Krupp works.

Coastal landings were made in specially designed combat boats—with shallow draft and stubby sea-sled ends which could be let down to discharge Bren gun carriers and light tanks. Air-borne Commandos received early training in safe methods of dropping to their objectives and speedily assembling into combat groups.

At first only the toughest volunteers were accepted as Commandos — about five per cent of the volunteers finally being accepted for Commando duty. These men were the "guinea pigs" of the new training program, for they found out at first hand just what training should be most emphasized. Many of these men are already leading training courses in this new aggressive fighting. Others are leading Commando raids such as that at St. Nazaire.

The dean of the Ohio house Republicans, Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton, already has started his campaign. He has represented the Tenth district since 1924. The state's first woman member of congress, Mrs. Francis P. Bolton of Cleveland, will campaign to hold the seat formerly occupied by her late husband, Chester Bolton.

Among the other Ohio house members ready to ask renomination are Representatives Robert F. Jones (R) of Lima, Jacob E. Davis (D) of Waverly, A. D. Baumhart Jr. (R) of Vermilion and Greg Holbrock (D) of Hamilton.

The Ohio house delegation is evenly divided politically, 12 Republicans and 12 Democrats, and each party will be trying to change this division in the election campaigns. The Democrats concede that the vote-getting ability of their party's candidate for governor will have an important bearing on the congressional races.

Some Urge Donahey.

For this reason, some of them had decided to urge former Senator Vic Donahey to come out of retirement and seek the nomination for governor. This group argued that the three-time governor from Indian Lake would be the man to give Bricker a close race, perhaps defeat him.

This plan apparently has been abandoned, however, in the light of a statement by Donahey that he wanted to remain on the sidelines.

HUGE BOMBERS PROVE WORTH

Long Range Giant Aircraft of U. S. Score Success in Southwest Pacific.

By DEVON FRANCIS
Wide World Aviation Editor.

NEW YORK—Out of the confusion of the war in the southwest Pacific has come a report justifying America's construction of large armadas of heavy, long-range bombers for offensive action in the air.

Melbourne news dispatches state that this country's four-engine bombers, the kind which can fly several thousand miles non-stop, not only have been dealing effective blows at the Japanese with explosives but are shooting down attacking aircraft as well.

First on the list of musts in building up United States air power for World war II is the construction of large numbers of such heavy bombers. In seven states factories already are turning them out or will be in the next few months.

Most surprising to the layman is the degree of self-protection built into the planes.

Many Vantage Points.

They abound with machine gun positions, from which gunners can pour streams of fire at enemy interceptor planes bent on shooting them down. General MacArthur's command was especially happy over the ruinous fire which the bombers' tail gunners have been able to turn on Japanese pursuit pilots.

A favorite trick of an interceptor pilot is to attack a bomber at what ordinarily is its least protected spot, the tail. Stern attacks have become highly dangerous, usually fatal, for Japanese pilots in the southwestern Pacific.

Melbourne also attributes to the high-altitude performance of the bombers their ability to attack Japanese objectives without running the risk of assaults by defending Japanese interceptor pilots. The Japanese aren't flying that high.

Clouds or poor visibility conditions occasionally make it necessary for American bombers to descend to altitudes where they encounter Japanese pursuits.

Home Product.

Military-wise, the American four-engine bomber is a peculiarly native institution. It was born of the theory that big airplanes could be used in the event of war to attack, far at sea, an enemy flotilla trying to invade the country.

Italy, France, England and Germany missed the boat on the heavy bomber type when they began building up their air forces. But the Japanese didn't. Tokyo's air assault weapons apparently include a considerable number of big bombers, as shown by the types thrown against Corregidor.

England and Germany started late to mend their error, but today they, too, are constructing fleets of the big planes.

Russia has experimented intensively in the large bomber field, but little has been heard from the Soviet's four-engine type since Germany marched on the Russians last June. Stalin has a habit of springing surprises, and such Red Star planes now may be held in reserve for the warfare this spring and summer.

Presently new American heavy bombers, which can climb faster and fly more swiftly with their two-ton loads than their forebears, will be thrown into the fray. The war department is, of course, keeping details on the new planes secret.

and they praised the willingness of the farmers to do everything possible to speed the transfer of the land and thus clear the way for the war plant.

May Lease Some Of War Plant Site

Marion county farmers eventually may be able to lease part of the Scioto Ordnance Plant grounds for farming operations, Lt. Col John Huling Jr. indicated in an announcement today.

"It is the general policy of the war department to lease for farming purposes such portions of new manufacturing facilities as are not needed for immediate use in active manufacturing operations," he said.

"In cases where such leases are made, it is necessary for the lessees to be fingerprinted and provided with passes." He said it is also necessary for them to agree to relieve the government of liability for any damage or injury which might result from any manufacturing operations on the site.

He added that the layout of the Scioto Ordnance Plant site is not far enough advanced now to permit any calculation of whether there will be land available here, but that a formal announcement will be made later.

his move to increase French-German collaboration but Petain thus far has been said to be adamant.

The demands on Vichy, attributed to Jacques Doriot, strongly pro-Nazi French journalist, were published in the Pariser Zeitung. An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich said the demands were:

1. The Petain regime must immediately adopt a new policy of closest cooperation with the axis powers by taking an active role against the United States, Britain and Russia.

2. Vichy must fundamentally alter its government and dismiss all ministers, generals and political leaders known to be pro-Anglo-Saxon.

3. Petain must give executive power to those who during the past 18 months pressed for collaboration with the axis.

4. Further indecision by Vichy is "intolerable and is tantamount to a decision against the axis which means the suicide of France."

12 Ships Sunk by Subs in Atlantic Last Week

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 13—Twelve officially announced ship sinkings on this side of the Atlantic last week brought to 127 the acknowledged total of losses in the area since Pearl Harbor.

Nine of the victims were American vessels; the others one each of British, Brazilian and Norwegian registry.

Enemy submarines in eastern U. S. waters during the week sent nine merchantmen to the bottom for a war total of 23; one in the Caribbean boosts that total to 30; none off Canada left its total 23, and two off South America made its war figures six.

Pat Keeps Clean

FORT DAVIS, Tex.—Rancher Richard K. Merrill tells, solemnly, about his tiny bulldog, Pat, who doesn't like skunks but nevertheless rushes to the attack whenever one invades his master's property. by infantry and tanks in a general attempt to feel out the depth of the Red army's positions. Warm weather and slush prevailed in the principal fighting areas.

Russian sappers at one point were reported to have diverted the course of a flood from the spring thaw, washing the enemy out of a fortified village. Russians voiced belief that the next offensive would be their own, that the German army would be smashed on Russian soil this year or, if the worst came, that the Red army would continue the fight in the Urals or Siberia.

Dispatches from the rain-drenched front said the engineers defied German guns and dug trenches through which the flood surged upon enemy positions.

Just as the waters swept over the Germans in this village, so is a wave of confidence in ultimate triumph sweeping over the Soviet Union.

Optimistic Russians give three reasons for their confidence:

1. They believe the spring offensive will be their offensive

2. They are convinced the German army will be smashed on Russian soil this year.

3. If the worst should come, they are prepared to fight on, in the Urals or Siberia.

Bolstering the first point, a Soviet brigade commissar broadcast from the front that "a German offensive this spring appears to be most unlikely."

He said he based his belief on the statements of German prisoners of war and on the quality of reinforcements the Germans have sent up, consisting "mainly of very young, half-trained men or semi-invalids, deaf and one-eyed, or of wounded not quite recovered."

Air Force Still Strong

The German aviation arm still was strong, but asserted that the Soviet fliers were overtaking the slower Nazi planes at any height and beating them—with machine-guns, cannon and ramming.

The German high command acknowledged Russian attacks at several points but named only Kerch peninsula, in the Crimea, where it said the Russians, weakened by losses Saturday, were repulsed yesterday.

In the other sectors the attacks were "by strong enemy forces," likewise repulsed, according to Berlin.

Motorized infantrymen were credited with killing 1,000 Russians and taking 650 prisoners in a German attack.

German bombers were reported by Berlin to have struck again at harbor installations at Murmansk, Russia's far northern port of entry, where a roundabout report from Moscow said a big convoy of American, British and Dutch ships had berthed.

The war in Africa and the Mediterranean was marked by a German report that a British cruiser had arrived at Gibraltar heavily damaged by attack at Malta, and an Italian claim that Axis planes had forced a withdrawal of British advance units southeast of El Mechili.

The Italians said that six Curtiss planes were downed by German fighters yesterday over Libya.

The British said merely that heavy dust storms on the Libyan desert restricted operations to patrolling.

Ohio Draft Boards Get Work Questionnaires

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 13—Approximately 100,000 occupational questionnaires have been distributed to Ohio's 330 draft boards and the rest will go out soon, state selective service headquarters officials reported today.

Men signed in the Feb 16 registration will receive the forms first but boards have been sent only about one-fourth the total number of questionnaires needed, officers said.

Virtually the full supply of questionnaires for Ohio registrants has been received but officials explained they were being distributed in a manner designed to permit the April 25-27 registration of Ohioans between 45 and 65 years old to receive them without interruption.

Officials said local boards had been instructed to use their own discretion in distributing the folders.

Babies Called No. 1 Morale Builder for U. S. Soldiers

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Day-old babies are the number one morale builders in the army.

When a soldier becomes a proud papa, every man he has been drilling and working with feels pepped up.

Dr. Fred L. Adair, general chairman of the American Congress on Obstetrics and Gynecology, and Dr. M. E. Davis, both of Chicago, declared in interviews that to protect this deep interest of men in the fighting forces, the army must maintain an adequate number of trained obstetricians in local communities In addition, they suggested such specialists be assigned to this field in army and navy camps."

"A worried soldier is an almost worthless soldier," Dr. Davis said. "When his wife is pregnant, he naturally is concerned about the kind of attention she is receiving. If she writes and says that she is not getting the right kind of attention, he naturally is upset and his mood may be reflected in the entire company.

"On the other hand, if he is assured she is being properly cared for, his mind is free and he pitches in with twice the enthusiasm he might otherwise have."

Dr. Davis, who is special consultant with the children's bureau of the department of labor, added that while prospective fathers may be kidded by barracks mates, they are all jubilant when news of births arrive.

On one occasion, the baby born to the wife of a corporal acquired 20 godfathers when the platoon turned out in formation for the christening.

Dr. Adair, who has spent a large part of his life delivering babies, said it is inevitable that wifes will follow the soldiers to be with them.

"This creates a new problem around army camps—care of the women during pregnancy and childbirth."

He said at some camps specialists in obstretics have been put to work in their specialty. One in a Texas camp delivered more than 40 babies last month.

U. S. Soldier Weds Irish Girl in Locked Church

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, April 13—Private Herbert Cooke of Cleveland braved possible U. S. army displeasure today to marry an 18-year-old colleen in a church locked against those who might interfere.

He was the first AEF man to wed and his bride was Miss Thelma Smith. When her father reached the Presbyterian church, he found the doors locked and had to return home.

Army authorities do not require enlisted men to obtain specific permission to marry, but say it "is advisable." Private Cooke apparently obtained only the permission of his bride and her parents.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

When your soldier or sailor boys roll into the old homestead on leave, they will enjoy being greeted by some of their food favorites.

Most service men get good nourishing food in the Army and Navy but they will be very glad to meet something new and snappy in culinary numbers.

There must be a full cooky jar in the house—and I suggest that you have a reserve hidden away. So here are some victory cookies that will be enjoyed: Cream together ½ cup butter and ¾ cup peanut butter, add 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs and ¼ cup cream. Beat 2 minutes. Stir in a cup of raisins, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and grated orange rind, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 3 cups flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon soda mixed in. Chill dough, drop portions from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheets. Flatten tops with fork and bake 10 minutes in moderate oven.

Jumbo Nut Topped Brownies: Cream 1 cup fat with 2 cups sugar (save up sugar rations for this treat), add 4 beaten eggs, ½ cup cream, 2 teaspoons vanilla, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Add 2 cups flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Beat 2 minutes—clock this to make sure you do not under beat. Pour to thickness of an inch in shallow pan lined with 2 thicknesses of waxed paper. Sprinkle top with 1 cup roasted peanuts, pecans or sliced cashews. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven—about 350 degrees F. Cool in pan, cut in 2 inch squares, remove and pack away in cooky jar or covered box.

Molasses Crunch is excellent to have on hand for between meal snacks. Boil 1 cup molasses with 1-3 cup water, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt until "click ball" forms when portion is poured into cup cold water. Do not stir the mixture while cooking, but when it is done stir in 1-3 teaspoon soda and while foaming add 1 cup roasted peanuts and 4 cups freshly popped unsalted popped corn. Mix thoroughly and drop portions onto waxed paper. Let cool and pack in a box in cool place.

MASSILLON RATES HIGH

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 13—Students from Washington High at Massillon dominated the class A division of the state speech tournament here. George Howells took first in humorous declamation, Hershel Sarbin first in extempore speaking, and Steve Atwater first in dramatic declamation. Dayton Oakwood was outstanding in the class B contests.

POPULAR RECIPES

Chicken In Biscuits

Second or third day chicken is not always appetizing. There are seldom enough choice pieces to go around, and some member of the family has to be content with the neck or gizzard. This recipe solves serving problems and yields 12 chicken rolls fit for any guest:

Two cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons cream of tarter baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, ½ or ¾ cup milk, 1½ cups cooked chicken, ground, 3 tablespoons chicken gravy, salt and pepper to taste, condensed mushroom soup for sauce.

Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Work in the shortening. Add the milk gradually and mix together until a medium-soft dough is formed. Toss on a floured board and roll out into a piece 9 by 12 inches. Cut into 3-inch squares, making 12 in all. Spread each with a mixture of the meat and gravy, seasoned with salt and pepper. Roll and place on baking sheet, split side down.

Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a hot oven 425 degrees to 450 degrees F. Serve plain, with chicken gravy, or with hot mushroom sauce. For a sauce short-cut, add ½ cup milk to 1 can condensed mushroom soup and heat to boiling point.

Sweet Tips

Honey, chopped raisins and pecans or walnuts in equal portions make a grand top spread for coffee cake or any plain cake. Apply before baking.

Why not serve an ice-cream cake? Spread ice-cream of any desired flavor between layers of sponge cake and serve at once.

Crusty Shrimp Loaf

One small loaf bread, 2 tablespoons melted shortening, 1½ cups soft bread crumbs, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 No. 1 cans chopped shrimp, 2 hard-cooked eggs, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Slice crusts from sides and ends of bread and level off top. Cut out center, leaving ½ inch around sides and on bottoms. Place in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. 15 minutes; brush with melted shortening and place in hot oven 425 degrees F. until lightly browned.

Mix bread crumbs, milk and seasonings. Place layer of chopped shrimp on bottom of loaf. Reserving 2 slices of egg for garnishing, chop remaining egg. Cover shrimp with half of the crumb mixture; sprinkle with egg and parsley. Repeat until all ingredients are used.

Bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven 400 degree F. Garnish top with egg slices. Serve loaf sliced, with white sauce, and parsley garnish. Pickled peaches are an appetizing accompaniment. Serves 6.

Baked Green Peas

Two and one-half cups peas, cooked, 3 slices bacon, fried, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, ¼ cup milk, ½ cup buttered bread cubes.

Cook green peas; drain. Broil or fry bacon and break in small sections. Discard about half the fat. Add peas and seasonings and mix lightly. Place in buttered casserole, add milk and sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven 400 degrees F. until crumbs are golden brown.

CONVENTIONS CALLED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 13—Four one-day interdenominational conventions, designed to help carry religious influence to school children and adults now unreached by churches, will be held in Ohio this week. They will be in Dayton on Wednesday, Findlay Thursday, Akron Friday and Cambridge Saturday. The program is sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches and Religious Education.

Dressings You're Certain To Like

Fruit Salad Dressing

Even the usual dressing for fruit salad calls for sugar, but this one is different. It is easy to make and easy to remember. ½ cup orange juice, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ cup grapefruit juice, ¼ cup water, ½ cup honey, 3 eggs, slightly beaten.

Heat fruit juices, water and honey in top of double boiler over moderate heat. Stir in the slightly beaten eggs. Continue stirring steadily and cook over hot water until thick. Cool; store in glass jar.

For an extra-special salad, whipped cream may be folded in lightly just at serving time. Recipe yields 1½ cups fruit-flavored dressing.

* * *

Boiled Salad Dressing

2 cups hot water, 2/3 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 heaping tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 4 egg yolks, ½ cup sugar.

Mix half of the water with the vinegar and butter in a double boiler and let come to a boil. Beat the egg yolks until light and gradually beat in the sugar. Set aside. Blend the flour, salt and mustard; stir in the remaining water and add this mixture to the sugar and egg yolks.

Blend thoroughly and gradually add the whole mixture to the water, vinegar and butter in the top of the double boiler. Cook until the desired consistency is reached.

Note: This recipe, yielding 15 or 20 portions, is said to be popular at the White House. Store unused dressing in covered jar in refrigerator.

FARMERS PROPOSE OWN MILK PLANT

Delaware Co. Producers May Sell Direct to U. S.

DELAWARE, O., April 13—Aroused over what they say is an attempt of Columbus milk distributors to force down the price of surplus milk, Delaware county dairymen have begun buying shares in a proposed cooperative to build a milk powdering plant and market their own surplus milk.

At a meeting of dairymen in the courthouse Thursday, Dale McCormick, Licking county Ayrshire breeder and chairman of the Central Ohio Milk Producers association, said Columbus distributors are refusing to sell surplus milk in powdered form to the U. S. government "because they didn't want to take the government price." McCormick said the government price for powdered milk, around 12 cents, provides for adequate profit to the distributor.

The Central Ohio Milk Producers board found on a recent trip to Washington, McCormick said, that the government had purchased all powdered milk offered at the government price and was even buying all the evaporated milk offered for sale.

"And then the distributor tells us that he has no market for our surplus milk," he said. "The only holdup is in the high price the distributor wants."

McCormick explained that the money placed in the cooperative will be used to set up a powdering plant, probably in Columbus, to handle the surplus milk. He said he had been given assurance that the government would buy the powdered milk.

Major League Baseball Teams Await Opening of 1942 Season Tomorro

Cleveland Opens Against Tigers at Detroit; Redlegs Entertain Pittsburgh Pirates.

By AUSTIN BEALMAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 13—If all the hopes, desires and predictions are fulfilled this year for managers of major league baseball teams, the first divisions of both the circuits are going to be a little crowded.

Not a single manager could be found today who was willing to admit that his club wasn't tagged for an upper berth. But half of them, if the weather doesn't interfere, are due for a setback tomorrow when all 16 teams are scheduled to start play in the first wartime season in 21 years.

The lineup sends New York to Washington, Philadelphia to Boston, St. Louis to Chicago and Cleveland to Detroit in the American league, while the National loop will find Brooklyn at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati and Chicago at St. Louis.

War Effect Cited

Most of them believe that the war will have some effect on the play of the teams but none expects business at the gates to decline.

Few dared to pick a winner in the National league, but American league managers, with the exception of Joe McCarthy, think the New York Yankees are the boys to beat.

Connie Mack picked the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox to run one-two in the American league, while Yankee manager Joe McCarthy promises "something interesting" from his club, which will be after its sixth American league pennant in seven years.

There was a note of confidence in the statement of Manager Leo Durocher of the National league champion Brooklyn Dodgers, who declared:

"I feel that I have a better ball club than last year and we won the pennant with that one."

"I hope the Indians finish in the first division," said Cleveland's Lou Boudreau. "If the team makes any berth better than fourth, I'll be very happy. But don't forget, the pennant is our goal."

Joe Cronin believes his Boston Red Sox are as good, if not better, than last year. "The Yankees are favored, of course," he said, "and it's up to Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis to knock them off."

Dykes Picks Yanks

"It'll be the Yankees again in the American league," said Jimmy Dykes of Chicago's White Sox and Del Baker of Detroit Tigers, but Luke Sewell of the St. Louis Browns summed up the situation with: "Anything can happen. The team that gets the breaks will win."

Said Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators: "I'm packing up for fourth, but I'm not betting."

Optimistic is the word for Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds. "The club looks better," he said. "Our pitching is tops and I am sure our attack is going to be much stronger."

Mel Ott, new skipper of the New York Giants, also displayed optimism:

"Our pitching, which was the big problem when we went south, has shaped encouragingly and I'm sure our hitting will come along as soon as we get a chance to play every day," he said.

Brooklyn Favored

Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs, picked Brooklyn for the pennant, and added: "The Cubs are going to be a lot stronger than last season. We're out to win the pennant just like every other team. I hope we'll finish among the contenders."

Frankie Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates declined to name the position he expected his team to occupy at the end of the chase, but said: "We figured to be in the pennant race, but we've got to get away to a good start."

Billy Southworth, whose St. Louis Cardinals are being picked to battle it out with the Dodgers for the National league flag, is "depending on strong defense, good pitching and enough power to keep us in the race."

"The Phils will be a fighting, aggressive club throughout the season," assured Hans Lobert, the new manager of Philadelphia's National league entry. In the same vein, Casey Stengel of the Boston Braves said: "This is an uncertain year, and I just don't know how we'll do. Brooklyn had a long training trip. Cincinnati looks good and, from what I hear, so does St. Louis. There'll be a battle royal for the other five places."

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 13—The standings board at the American Bowling Congress tournament sparkled with new stars today.

After 11 strikes, the Iowan got 1-2-8 split. It was the highest individual game in the tourney to date.

Nelson Burton, captain of the St. Louis Budweiser team that took second place with 3111 Saturday, blasted out a 740 for first position in the singles. He rolled games of 235, 246 and 265.

The all-events lead went to Stanley Moskal of Saginaw, Mich., with 1973 on counts of 599 in the five-man, 711 in the doubles and 663 in the singles.

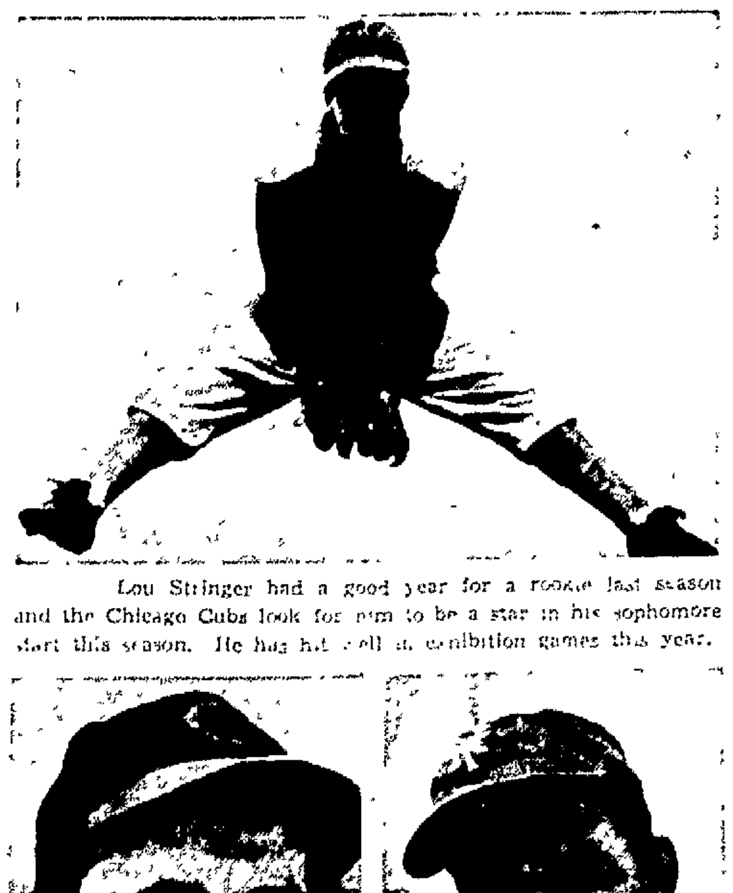
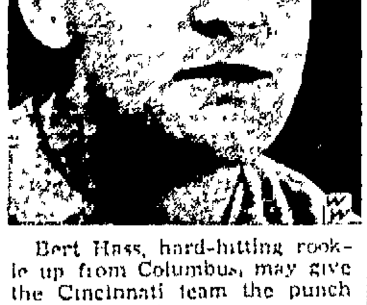
A TRIO OF

Four-Star Performers

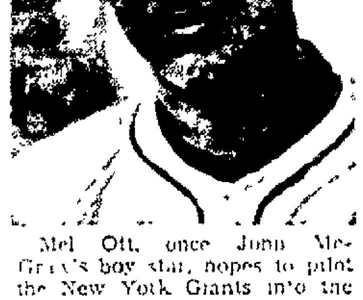
TEE OFF Tomorrow



Lou Stringer had a good year for a rookie last season and the Chicago Cubs look for him to be a star in his sophomore start this season. He has hit well in exhibition games this year.



Bert Hass, hard-hitting rookie up from Columbus, may give the Cincinnati team the punch it sorely needs.



Mel Ott, once John McGraw's boy star, hopes to pilot the New York Giants into the first division.

CONNIE MACK SORELY IN NEED OF PITCHERS

Veteran Athletic Manager Has Great Infield.

By The Associated Press

WICHITA FALLS, Tex.—Disappointed with his pitchers, Connie Mack nevertheless believes his Philadelphia Athletics "will be all right" this season.

"I feel that I am going to have a pretty fair ball club this year, one that with good pitching will hold its own with any team in our league," the 79-year-old pilot predicted. The A's finished in last place in 1941.

The pitchers who have weakened Connie's hopes are Dick Fowler, Fred Caligiuri and Bill Beckman. The first two showed much promise last fall, Mack pointed out, but have been hit hard this spring and Beckman "has been murdered."

"The way it looks now," he said, "my starters will have to be Jack Knott, Phil Marchildon, Russ Christopher and Herman Besse. I'm going to keep Lum Harris and Rog Wolff for relief—to save games—if we are ahead."

Most pleasing thing to Mack about his 1942 edition is his infield. He's satisfied with his starting selections and has faith in his reserves.

"Dick Siebert at first, Bill Knickerbocker at second, Rookie Jack Wallaesa at short and Buddy Blair at third are Connie's first choices, and he has Pete Suder, a regular third baseman last year, and Kenny Richardson as utility men.

"Some people may be surprised that I'm using Wallaesa, but I believe the boy needs to play to improve," Connie explained. "He needs work and experience and he has so much ability."

He feels Frankie Hayes will take good care of the catching chores.

The outfield, though, has Connie worried because of Mike Kreevich's arm injury.

White Sox Win Chicago Series; Edge Cubs 4-3

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 13—Another season, and another Chicago city series—for the White Sox.

The losers—the Cubs—really made a fight of it this spring, however. They rallied to win three straight games and tie up the series at five tilts apiece going into yesterday's finale at Comiskey park, home of the Sox.

The Cubs were still in the running through 7½ innings, the score then being tied at 3-3. But before the eighth inning was concluded the Sox scored, Joe Kuhel and Luke Appling executing a double steal for the run that brought 4-3 victory, and the spring championship.

HOGAN, NELSON IN MASTERS' PLAYOFF

Finish 72-Hole Grind Deadlocked at 280.

By The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 13 — Slender Ben Hogan and towering Byron Nelson, two of golf's crack professionals, match their skill today in an 18-hole playoff for the Masters' championship.

The two Texans were deadlocked with 280 strokes apiece at the end of the regulation 72 holes yesterday.

They'll be shooting at golfing gold of $1,500 for the winner and $800 for runner-up.

Nelson was leading Hogan by three strokes when they started yesterday's final round, but he wilted under the pace and wound up with an undistinguished 73. A trapped second shot on the 71st hole cost him clear claim to the title. Hogan, the dark little man who never quits, shot a birdie three on the last hole of the tournament to gain his 70 — two strokes under par—and a tie.

Their respective records for the four rounds were: Nelson 68-67-72-73, Hogan 73-70-67-70. Paul Runyan, a pint-size like Hogan, scored a fine 71 on his final round for a 283 total and third prize of $600. Fourth was tenacious Sammy Byrd, 285 and $500, and fifth, the veteran Horton Smith, 287 and $400. From there down the prize money dwindled fast.

DETERMINATION

MIAMI, Fla — Kerry Rainey, Miami High school pitcher, felt he'd won a baseball game if he held the opposition hitless long enough. A week ago he pitched seven hitless innings against Kentucky Military academy, only to lose—2 to 0—when his teammates made six errors. Next time out he held Fort Lauderdale not only hitless but runless for nine innings and Miami won, 8 to 0.

Tribe, Reds Ready

Bad Weather Puts Tribe on Shelf Five Days; Bucky Walters To Hurl Opener for Cincy.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., April 13—The Cincinnati Reds open the baseball season here tomorrow against Pittsburgh convinced that while league pennants aren't won until September, they can be lost before mid-May.

World champions and experts' choice to repeat, the 1941 Reds dropped 11 games behind the league leader in the first month. They consoled themselves that as a "hot weather" ball club they'd be in the thick of the fight by Labor day.

All the Redlegs' memories are long enough—and Manager Bill McKechnie has been jogging them all spring—to recall that Brooklyn and St. Louis who made hay early, didn't cooperate and the Reds ended up 11½ games off the pace.

Veteran Bucky Walters was regarded as the probable opening day hurler, although McKechnie hasn't announced his choice and Elmer Riddle was a possibility.

The remainder of Tuesday's line-up probably will be the same as the one which got 10 hits in beating the Detroit Tigers 6-5 here yesterday in the exhibition finale: Eddie Joost, ss; Lonnie Frey, 2b; Ival Goodman, rf; Gerald Walker, lf; Frank McCormick, 1b; Bert Haas, 3b; Mike McCormick, cf, and Rollie Hemsley, c.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 13 — Five days of idleness, due to something which comes under the heading of "weather," have scrambled the Cleveland Indians' pitching and batting techniques on the eve of the season's opener.

Before leaving tonight for Detroit, where the Tribe probably will send Jim Bagby to the mound against the Tigers' Al Benton in a contest before some 35,000 fans, the Indians sought another practice session this afternoon.

Neither of the week-end exhibition games scheduled with the New York Giants materialized, but yesterday the local club achieved its first outdoor workout since a week ago today, when the Indians defeated the Giants at Greenville, Miss.

Most of the two and one-half hours was alloted to batting drill, as Manager Lou Boudreau solicitously endeavored to give his men a chance to regain their batting eyes.

The only thing certain about the pitching situation was that Al Smith, Mel Harder and Vernon Kennedy would not make the trip to Detroit. Boudreau told them to stay home and keep working out daily at League Park. Harder has been nominated for the home opener against the Chicago White Sox next Friday.

By curtailing the final week of the Indians' exhibition trip with the Giants, the weather upset Boudreau's plans for getting his pitchers lined up for action.

The young manager still was to choose between Bagby and Al Milnar for the opening game at Detroit.

MT. GILEAD WOMAN SUES GAS COMPANY

Mrs. Campbell Asks $10,500 for Blast Damages.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 13—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Campbell has filed suit in the common pleas court here against the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. asking $10,500 damages for personal injuries and for property damage suffered when an explosion occurred in a house in which she lived May 30, 1940.

She alleges in the petition that the explosion and subsequent fire which destroyed the house was due to gas escaping from a pipe line within 50 feet of the house which was located 1,000 feet west of the corporation line. The site of the house is now within the corporation. The petition alleges that "the defendant by negligence and carelessness, in a manner unknown to the plaintiff, permitted gas to escape from the pipe lines and enter the home of the defendant, presumably through a tile drain attached to a kitchen sink." Mrs. Campbell further alleges that she was ill for two months prior to the explosion and that the illness was caused by gas fumes.

Mrs. Campbell was rendered unconscious by the explosion and suffered burns on hands, arms and face.

MARKET TONE IS FAVORABLE

Trend Improves Over Last Week, Although Recovery Is Not Great.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 13 — Stock market action today was moderately favorable in comparison with the performance most of last week although the recovery pulsebeat was feeble in most leaders.

Some preferred stocks pushed up a point or so. Trends were uneven in chemicals and industrial manufacturing shares.

A little support came in on the theory the recent decline shaped the market's position toward a technical rally. In general those who had tentative buying ideas were disposed to wait for better news and a clearer outline of the administration's inflation-control program, which was expected later this week.

Slightly ahead most of the time were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, American Airlines, American Telephone, American Smelting, Union Carbide and Westinghouse. Shares inclined to heaviness included Dow Chemical, Air Reduction, United Aircraft and Santa Fe.

GRAIN PRICES HIT DOWNWARD TRAIL

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 13 — Grain prices were on the retreat today, wheat and rye leading the decline with losses of approximately a cent a bushel.

Failure of flour and milling trade activity to expand, after an improved demand late last week, indications that producers are continuing to redeem 1941 wheat from government loans in order to clear storage room for the new crop and reports of a fresh government drive on inflation were bearish factors.

Wheat closed ⅝-¾ cent lower than Saturday, May $1.22¾, July $1.25¼-1.25; corn ½-⅞ down, May 87⅛-¼, July 89⅞-¾; oats ⅞-½ down; soybeans ½-1½ lower; rye ¾-⅞ lower.

3 New Vitamins Found in Grass and Linseed Oil

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON—Add three new vitamins, one from grass and two in linseed oil, to the 15 known vitamins you must have to be healthy.

Discovery of the three was reported to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Dr. D. W. Wooley, Rockefeller Institute, New York.

The new vitamins undoubtedly exist elsewhere than in grass and linseed oil, and, although both substances are edible for humans, it is not necessary to mix a grass-linseed salad to get the vitamins. Their nature still is unknown and they have not been isolated.

Dr. Wooley found them when feeding guinea pigs all the now known dietary essentials available in pure form. These were the known vitamins and sucrose, casein and corn oil, supposedly containing everything necessary.

The pigs stopped growing and finally died on this diet. When linseed oil was added, they lived a few weeks longer. Then dried grass was added, and the pigs grew and lived OK.

Chemical analysis showed that the linseed oil contained two of the factors necessary to the life of the pigs; the grass [illegible] any one of [illegible] away, the pigs [illegible]

A religious awakening, pronounced since Pearl Harbor, is developing in the ranks of the United States Army, say chaplains in the service.

In the words of Chaplain William D. Cleary, a colonel and director of the Army chaplain's school, "Some mothers and wives and sweethearts think Johnny is going to Hell when he enters the Army. Our experiences has been the opposite."

Brig. Gen. Arnold

The Tipperary-born veteran of 24 years of Army service is enthused over reports from the staff in the field. "Men who never have gone to church are inquiring about it," he says. "Others who have been away five or 10 years are coming back. If morality is high, morale is good."

Statistics are not dependable because of shifting personnel at Army posts, but Chaplain Cleary believes the rate of church attendance is greater among soldiers than in most civilian communities.

Attendance Voluntary

There is no compulsion about attending services, nor is there proselyting, says Chaplain Cleary, who was ordained a Catholic priest in Paris in 1907 and entered Army service from the Brooklyn diocese. Notices of religious services are posted, and soldiers attend if they wish. There is one chaplain for every 1,200 officers and men. When two or more are assigned to a unit, almost invariably they are of different churches.

By year-end the corps of chaplains guarding the spiritual welfare of the fighting men will be the largest in national history. Head of the corps, which now numbers some 1,700 and is expected to reach 3,000 by December, is a veteran soldier-priest whose boyish smile belies his 60 years. He is Brigadier General William R. Arnold, first Roman Catholic to be chief of chaplains.

There is nothing sanctimonious about this former college first baseman and halfback who has spent more than 28 years in uniform. His pleasant, informal manner and ready humor mask a conviction that "the best soldiers are men of strong religious principle."

"A good soldier is more than a man in uniform armed with weapons and military skill," says General Arnold. "He must be a man with a clear mind and a clean heart. The ideal soldier is a man of spiritual power."

He agrees with Chaplain Cleary as to the link between morality and morale, and adds that military leaders are convinced sound religious training increases efficiency of a soldier.

Mental Attitudes Stressed

"General Marshall," says Chaplain Arnold, "puts in this way: 'The Army's obligation to provide religious education is not simply a matter of morals or sentiment. Soldiers today must be in condition morally and mentally as well as physically to withstand the ordeals of the enemy's onslaught and still be able to carry the fight to the other fellow.'"

Spiritual issues involved in this war, says General Arnold, are more sharply drawn than in the previous world war and therefore more clearly seen by the soldier.

"He recognizes that it is more than a conflict of economic systems. [illegible]

New York Working Girls Serving in Aircraft Warning Auxiliary

Disciplined Volunteer Women's Army Works in All-Night Shifts Without Pay.

By AMY PORTER
Wide World Writer

NEW YORK—Eight o'clock is going-to-work time for a lot of people.

But for 80 young New York women, it's going-home time.

Curious thing about these 80, though. As they file out of their Manhattan office building at 8 a. m., some of them duck down into the subway, while others step into chauffeur-driven limousines.

Some hurry along with worried glances at wrist watches, as if they were just going to work instead of leaving it. Others drift into a nearby drugstore for leisurely coffees.

Their actions don't make sense until you know they're members of the AAWS—Auxiliary Aircraft Warning Service.

They and some 18,000 more young women scattered through many cities form the nearest thing at present to a women's army in this country.

Serve Without Pay

Unlike army regulars they don't get paid—although a bill pending in congress would grant them regular army status and pay beginning at $21 a month with maintenance.

This volunteer women's army, with its steadily increasing size and strength, is paving the way for the regular women's army that may come any day now.

Working for love instead of money, these volunteers are chalking up a record for efficiency, loyalty, and discipline that compels the respect of the most skirt-shy army men.

How could it be otherwise?

When a woman volunteer cheerfully reports for work at 3:45 a. m. and cheerfully works until 8—well, you can't even hold her limousine against her.

When a $15 a week stenographer does likewise on a different schedule, reporting at 6:45 p. m. and working until midnight—well, what can an army man say but "thanks"?

The government is grateful, too, because every "soldier girl" engaged in non-combatant duties releases some soldier boy for an active fighting job.

Work in Shifts

In the New York information center of the Aircraft Warning Service, 900 women volunteers work on regular four and five-hour shifts, serving four or five days a week. They include well-known writers, a sculptress, the wife of a movie star, the wife of a politician—along with scores of girls who work for a modest living.

The AAWS commander, Mrs. Jacqueline [illegible], unofficially [illegible], says a straw vote shows that at least half of them would be willing to join a regular women's army on a full-time basis. Still more would do so if they were assured they would not be sent away from their homes to serve.

These volunteers are in deadly earnest about their work. [illegible]

A few have special personal reasons for wanting to win the war—they lost relatives at Pearl Harbor or on some European front.

Overcome Difficulties

Not being "regulars," many volunteers had to overcome private-life complications in order to serve.

One mother of an eight-year-old boy volunteered for the night shift because, she said, she realized it was hard to find workers for those hours, and "my husband doesn't mind getting our boy off to school without my help twice a week."

In the Norfolk, Va., center, four volunteers are salesgirls in a ten-cent store. Their soldier-girl hours are from 6 a. m. to 10 a. m. Their hours as five-and-dime salesgirls are from 10:30 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Commander at Norfolk is Lynette Hamlet, high school mathematics teacher. Her school allows her to hold her teaching job with only three hours of work a day, while she devotes as much as 10 hours or more to the AAWS.

One problem at Norfolk, Capt. Hamlet says, is night transportation, since buses and street cars stop running at midnight.

"Girls on our two night shifts—10 to 2 and 2 to 6, use private cars when they can," she explained, "otherwise we arrange for police cars to transport them."

No matter how inconvenient the working conditions, the AAWS isn't going to lack for soldier girls. Every day brings more applications from women who want to "join the army."

Kidney Inflammations

Inflammations of the kidneys are of at least two general kinds. One is the chronic tissue degeneration which is known as Bright's disease. This seldom produces any very serious symptoms until it is far advanced. It practically never produces pain and the old-fashioned picture of the man leaning over on a cane, with his hand over the small of his back represented an entirely false conception.

Infection of the kidney with germs, however, is an entirely different sort of process. The commonest form is that in which only the pelvis of the kidney is involved, pyelitis, and which affects mostly children and elderly people. Where you do have pain in the small of the back and also fever and pus and germs in the urine, it indicates the site and nature of the disease.

How the germs get there is quite a mystery. The kidney is pretty well protected and germs don't just float in as they do into the lungs and the digestive tract. The usual explanation is that most of the germs which cause pyelitis in infancy are normal inhabitants of the intestines and that there is a pathway of lymphatics from the intestine to the pelvis of the kidney.

The condition may be very mysterious and may fool the attending physician for a long time. The child may have fever and chills which nobody is able to explain. The collection of a child's urine for examination is difficult, and the younger the child, the greater the difficulty.

In elderly people in these cases there is backache, but children usually aren't able to explain their illnesses and the localization may be missed for a long time. However, the alert pediatrician is always thinking of pyelitis in any child with an unexplained fever and he soon makes an examination which will reveal the true nature of the condition.

The cases are fairly easy to treat. There are a number of drugs which are harmless in themselves but which are excreted in quite strong concentrations in the pelvis of the kidney and which kill off the germs responsible for the condition.

Besides this, the use of plenty of water to flush out the kidney is a logical form of treatment and in few complications arise, so that actual pus found in the urine is a fairly rare condition.

The importance of this subject lies in the fact that a child may be ailing for a long time and may not respond to the diagnostic tests for typhoid fever, Malta fever or any of the more common infections, while this condition may be the root of the evil. It is important that it should be recognized early in order that proper treatment may be instituted before any of the complications arise.

In elderly people the treatment can be carried out more effectively because it is more humane to irrigate the pelvis of an elderly person than it is that of a child.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Party Start Home, But Wait In Ambush To See What Happens When Gangsters Reach Diswell's.

"THAT suits me perfectly," I told Jim Watson as Gus assisted me—it was more like a shove—into the other turned seat facing the recumbent figure of Professor Diswell. Then the two cars started back down the rutted mountain road we had climbed such a short time before.

I noticed that Gus and Bill kept their eyes on the road behind us, but they gave no indication of seeing anything alarming, and in less than five minutes both cars stopped and Jim Watson, jumping down from the first car, came running back to our armored one.

"We've passed the place we wanted by a few yards," he said, "done it a purpose. Now if we both back down, keeping in the same tracks, until we get to the first opening on the right, we can turn in there and then fix up the tracks so nobody'll know we turned in. What do you say?"

Covering Tracks

"Okay," Joe replied, and Watson turned and sprinted for the smaller car.

There followed a skillful repetition of the maneuver this driver had used twice before. When it was completed, with both cars safely hidden in a hollow screened by underbrush, Watson came up to our armored car again.

"I've thought of something," he began abruptly. "I know this section like the palm of my hand, and those babies in the other car are tied so fast that Branchman don't need me to help look after them.

"Now, don't you think it would be a good plan for me to slip back through the underbrush until I get to a point where I can see and hear what goes on at Diswell's house? The state troopers won't take long to get there. And they'll make mincemeat of those birds now headed for Diswell's.

"Besides," he went on, and the zest of high adventure was in his eyes, "if those gangsters get there first, it wouldn't be a bad idea for me to edge along and tell the troopers just what the layout is."

"It's okay by me," Gus answered. "Ain't it with you, boys?"

"Sure thing," Bill and Joe replied.

"Then I'll just hike along," Watson said. "I'll be back as soon as I find out what's doing."

"Just a second," I said, and spoke to the man bending over Professor Diswell.

"Ought he not be taken to a physician?" I asked. "Should we delay doing it?"

Wants No Doctor

The old man stirred and put up a feeble wavering hand.

"All right," he croaked, but he did not open his eyes. "No doctor, please."

The man caring for him did not look at me when he spoke.

"I think he'll be all right," he said, "and I know what to do for him. Better not risk meeting those other men on the road."

"All right, Mr. Watson," I told him. "Be sure the troopers leave a guard over the house."

"I'll do that," he said. Then he slipped into the underbrush and almost at once was out of sight.

Diswell's Attendant a Puzzle

I turned back, ostensibly looking at Professor Diswell, but really I was furtively studying the man caring for him.

He was one of the queerest looking individuals I had seen in a long time, but I did not have the instinctive repulsion toward him which I had felt toward his obviously disguised double, who had posed as Professor Diswell's gardener.

This man was not disguised—unless one could call an unkept beard and badly cut but luxuriant graying hair camouflage. Experience with Harry Underwood in make-up told me both hair and beard were genuine.

Then the old professor opened his eyes and looked at me searchingly.

"Why did you come to see me?" he asked.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, April 14

Despite trivial setbacks, delays and disruptions this should be a day of satisfactory progress, expansion, and personal pleasure as well as profit. In fact the personality and social activity and appeal may be an important factor in promoting the cherished objectives and ambitions and friendly interest from high places may be sought with confidence. Such personal popularity and prestige will be sustained by much business acumen and sound judgment.

Those whose birthday it is should have a year of increased funds and possessions, with enhanced popularity and prestige, which should be used for putting over major programs of ambitious scope. It is an expansive, productive and progressive period, with gain from acute sagacity and acumen, supported by the element of friendship, hospitality and good fellowship. High goals in business, professional as well as financial objectives should be aimed at.

A child born on this day should have splendid intellect as well as astute business insight and efficiency. The purely personal equation may enter into the common-place activities and enhance the pleasure of the private life.

A portable typewriter has been developed in Switzerland that is 11 inches square and less than two and a half inches high, small enough to be held in a brief case.
